

ABOUT THIS BOOK

SELFISH (The case of the Deadly Journalist)

Selfish is defined as concerned excessively or exclusively with oneself: seeking or concentrating on one's own advantage, pleasure, or well-being without regard for others.

Definition of Sociopath: someone who behaves in a dangerous or violent way towards other people and does not feel guilty about such behavior.

A young girl decides the kind of life she wants to live, and then seeks out and goes after a man to fulfill her every dream. When the one she selects reveals he is married with a child she convinces him to divorce his wife and abandon her their only son. Once she has total control of him she steals the identify, of his ex-wife as well as his. She runs up enormous debts under each of their names and takes out substantial life insurance policies on both of them including the young son. Then as if finishing a bottle of water she throws them away; first by killing the ex wife then hiring someone to kill her husband. When she leaves town with her pickings she leaves the young son without an inheritance and that is when Marshal Harry Bailey is drawn into the madness.

Once Marshal Bailey is drawn in the case against her begins to mount up with body after body marking her trail until, a failed full identity make over threatens to cover her tracks for good. Finally a freak turn of events exposes her real identity and everyone ask the question will Marshal Bailey take down the "Selfish" Deadly Journalist.
