

ABOUT THIS BOOK

This case is about a convicted serial killer who tries to extort money from the public as revenge for his being incarcerated for his crimes. While suffering from multiple personalities he is picked up and interrogated for the senseless random strangulation of a innocent woman only hours before he launches his master extortion plan. The problem is the launch of his master plan was delayed by the murder of his psychologist. When the officer interrogating him for the first murder finds out about the second murder the interrogation process becomes more and more aggressive. But not as aggressive as it is about to become when the interrogator finds out about the mass murder extortion plan the suspect has on tape.

Come follow Marshal Bailey again as he investigates the trail of a proposed mass murderer with mental issues.
